BUSINESS PRINCIPLES IN POLITICS.

A Washington dispatch contains the following item of news regarding the appointment of postmaster:

John Field at Philadelphia, Pa., vice William F. Harrity, removed. The last appointment ends the long fight between Senator Quay and Postmaster Wanamaker for the Philadelphia office, Mr. Wanamaker's candidate finally coming out ahead. Mr. Field is a prominent business man of high reputation, while Senator Quay's candidate was Mr. Leeds, a well-known politician.

The special interest Senator Quay has taken in the candidacy of Mr. Leeds for postmaster at Philadelphia, was among the several reasons that Mr. Henry C. Lea decided to oppose the state republican nominations—rebuke President Harrison for allowing Mr. Quay to boss the appointments of that state for the benefit of the republican party. There are some very substantial reasons why a gentleman like Mr. Lea should be dissatisfied with the political methods of Matthew S. Quay. Mr. Lea is a good citizen, an able business man, honest and conscientious. In spirit he is a republican, although in 1884 he became a mugwump. He wants to see business principles applied to politics. When republicans are selected for office, he wants the selection made on the ground of special fitness—because of their integrity, personal worth, and business qualifications, and not because they have been prominent in doing work for the party. In the main, Mr. Lea is right.

Senator Quay like Mr. Lea, is a good citizen, an able business man, honest, and a man of fine education, and a radical in republican politics. He is likewise a magnificient campaigner. Every republican who watched the republican canvass last year has admiration for Matthew S. Quay. His skill and his silence in that campaign were simply wonderful. He is something of a Jacksonian in giving out spoils. He wants the victors "to get all there is to get." He wants to use the patronage of Pennsylvania, not dishonestly, but in such a way that every man who gets an office shall strengthen the party to the extent of his influence. This is the difference between Mr. Lea and Mr. Quay.

The latter wanted Mr. Leeds appointed postmaster because he was an active politician and had done something for the party. Mr. Lea and Mr. Wanamaker wanted Mr. Field appointed because he was not only a good republican, but a splendid business man with a high reputation for personal probety. The president wisely decided in favor of Mr. Field, for one reason that the latter is especially fitted for the office, and for another also, that his appointment would reflect greater credit on the republican party than would that of Mr. Leeds.

The best business man and politician, or more properly speaking, one of the best, was Chester A. Arthur. He was a noble example of what a politician should be. While he was a shrewd politician, he was a splendid business man. When he largely commanded the patronage of New York at a time when he was collector, he commanded it in such a way as not only to satisfy the republicans of his state, but to make the management of the custom house an establishment, which in its integrity was an honor to this country. He applied business principles in his politics, in fact he made them paramount, and when he did that he built for the republican party. That is the way President Harrison tries to do. It is the way Senator Quay should always do.

THE SHAME OF WEST VIRGINIA.

The other day General Goff, who was elected governor of West Virginia last fall, was in New York the other day and on the gubernatorial question he said:

"It is a remarkable test of the strength of our institutions that is going on in West Virginia. They are proceeding under the form of law to usurp the authority and power vested in elected officers. It is law, but it approaches anarchy. The man who is drawing the salary of Governor has no more right to it than you have. He draws it quickly every month as if afraid that some one would interfere to prevent him. The present status of the contest is one that will soon bring it before the legislature. The legislative committee has concluded its labors. The committee is composed of three democrats and two republicans. Its majority will report that after a review of the vote they find I am in the minority by 200. As a fact the examination gave me more majority than I had claimed. The legislature is democratic by one vote, but I do not believe it will stand by this report. There are a number of democrats who will not vote for such iniquity.

There are a great many strange things in democratic politics, but one of the strangest of recent occurrence is the usurpation of authority in that state which keeps General Goff out of the gubernatorial seat. Even the democrats themselves—those who pretend to be honest do no not question, and never did question, the legal election of General Goff. But the legislative committee was democratic and no matter how just may be the contest of the republican candidate, the democrats will receive the endorsement of that committee. It does seem hopeful that in all the legislature of West Virginia there must be found at least enough honest democrats to trample under foot the iniquitous report of the committee.

POSTAL TELEGRAPHY.

It may interest friends of postal telegraphy to know that the English postal system last year earned over 5 per cent on the total receipts, although the receipts fell off from the previous year over $1,000,000.

The foregoing item is making a tour among the newspapers and it is quite a significant item of news. For more than twenty years an effort has been made to establish postal telegraph in this country, but congress in every instance has defeated the scheme.

Just why congress has manifested such a contempt for postal telegraphy has not been satisfactorily shown from the speeches against the measure. One excuse was that it would necessarily increase the civil service roll, which, it was argued, was not a good thing to do. Another excuse was that the country was too wide and too long for such a system. The fact in the case is, Jay Gould was in the way. He dictated the policy of congress in regard to postal telegraphy. He marshalled his forces, and the power was too much for the friends of cheap and efficient telegraph, under the control of the government.

John Fawcett, the blind postmaster general of England, had some trouble in getting the postal telegraphic system established in England. But he conquered the prejudices of parliament, and secured the system. It is a great commercial advantage to England, and as an investment it pays. Through the seducing power of the Western Union monopoly, the people of the United States are deprived of cheap telegraphy.

THEY WILL BE PROSECUTED.

Those Political Assessments the Subject Of Official Indignation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The civil-service commission has decided to ask the district attorney to prosecute all persons concerned in the preparation and distribution of the political assessment circular recently sent by the Old Dominion Republican league to Virginians in the government service. Those persons not employes of the government will be prosecuted under section 12 of the civil service act, which provides that no person shall, in any government building, solicit or receive a contribution for any political purpose. The commission holds that a person not connected with the government in any way may ask for and receive money from government employes for political purposes anywhere except in a government building, but that where the occurrence takes place on government property or where letters are sent to government buildings, those concerned are liable to prosecution.

It is also proposed to prosecute Messrs. Elam, Godwin, and Werser, who are government employes, under section 11 of the act, which prohibits all persons drawing compensation from the United States from being in any manner connected with political assessments.

GEN. RAUM'S METHOD.

How the New Commissioner of Pensions Proposes to Run His Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Gen. Raum has issued instructions to heads of divisions in the pension office directing that all claims involving large sums of money, after they have been prepared for special adjudication, are not to be passed upon. They are to be brought to his department and he proposes to give them his personal consideration before the pension certificates will be issued. This change will not delay the final adjudication of the claim, as the commissioner intends to give the preference to business of this character and examine the cases as soon as brought before him. He does not intend to make a re-examination of the cases, but in connection with the official familiar with the cases he will go over them, so as to know what they are and the principle upon which they have been decided.

The commissioner, in an order issued to chiefs of divisions, calls attention to numerous fee arguments filed in the office, which are not in proper form, inasmuch as they do not contain the provisions of law, which show that agreements for fees in excess of $10 are not compulsory. The commissioner orders that attorneys be advised of this formality and that the fee agreements must not be recognized for certification of a fee in excess of $10 after Nov. 18 next.

Judge Groff on "Continuous Residence."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Commissioner Groff, of the general land office, has rendered a decision in the case of John L. Anderson vs. Mary Myers, on appeal from the local land office at Niobrara, Neb. The point involved in this case is one of residence, and Anderson alleges that the contestant, Myers, had not lived upon the land the full length of time required by law. The testimony shows that Mrs. Myers was poor and in ill health; that she lived upon the land as continuously as she was able, which was, however, less than the law specially requires. The Secretary says she has lived on the claim as continuously as she was able, and as much so as was consistent with prudence and safety. The law does not require that life and health should be sacrificed to maintain a residence. Her entry is sustained.

President Harrison at the Theater.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—For the first time since the inauguration President Harrison went to the theater last evening. He was present at the presentation at Albaugh's opera house of "Josephine, Empress of the French," by Rhea. The presidential party, composed of the President and Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Russell Harrison, Secretary Rusk, and Justice Miller of the Supreme Court, occupied a box on the left of the stage. Mr. Harrison was an attentive, though not applauding listener. Justice Miller gave the actress a hand at two or three of her telling climaxes. The doorkeeper was Mr. Buckingham, who was at the door of Ford's old Tenth Street theater the night President Lincoln was assassinated.

AN ALLEGED CONFESSION.

BURKE'S REPORTED TALE TO A FELLOW-PRISONER.

The Story of the Cronin Tragedy As a Manitoba Convict Claims Burke Told It.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Oct. 31.—Gillette, the forger, who was sentenced to ten year, in the Manitoba prison and who was a co-prisoner of Burke, the Chicago suspects was interviewed on his way from Winnipeg to the penitentiary at Stony Mountain. He said Burke almost incessantly talked about the Cronin murder and gave details of the crime to the prisoners, and to them sometimes unwillingly. He said that Burke would frequently burst into tears and bellow like a steer in the pen in which they were confined. Although he never admitted he killed Cronin he, however, told Gillette of circumstances connected with the practical abduction of Dr. Cronin from his house, the doctor, who was suspicious of O'Sullivan, being informed that a woman was in child-birth and required immediate attention. On entering the cottage Cronin was clubbed and the body put in a trunk. Burke didn't inform Gillette who struck the blow, and on being asked the question as to whether the Doctor made a big fight Burke said nothing. While in jail, on more than one occasion, Burke expressed a willingness to give the whole thing away, and then on reconsideration he said there were several men that he did not want to implicate in the crime, and would not give their names away.

Gillette went on to say that there was a great deal of truth in what Heffer and Mills said about the alleged confession of Burke to them. Heffer had been in jail and knew nothing of the Cronin murder until Mills' incarceration. When the latter was imprisoned, both being confined in the same pen, Heffer was made acquainted with the facts of the tragedy as they appeared in the press. Burke told the whole story voluntarily, from the time he was arrested until his extradition, although no effort was made to pump him.

Gillette asked Burke, while in jail, if an offer of $1,000 was made if he would give the whole thing away. His reply was: "I would not for $10,000. Indeed there are men implicated whom I would not like to give away for $10,000, for my life would not be worth anything if I did so."

Burke then wanted Gillette to get his lawyer to mail a letter for him, stating that he had no confidence in his own attorney; but Gillette, believing this might be a trap to catch him by the jail authorities refused, whereupon Burke replied; "It will be all right. I will get Father McCarthy to do so for me," and Gillette says that after the priest's next visit nothing more was heard of the letter.

Gillette says the letter referred to some things of Cronin's, but not to the clothes. The letter, according to Burke's story, was not sent.

HOLZHAY'S TRIAL BEGUN.

Opening of the Case Against "Black Bart" of the Northern Woods.

BESSEMER, Mich., Oct. 31.—Holzhay was arraigned in court Wednesday at 2 p. m., and to the question, "Are you guilty or not guilty?" replied that he had nothing to say. At the request of the attorneys for the defense the case was adjourned for one day to allow time for the preparation of important affidavits. It is reported that the defense will attempt to prove that from the position occupied by the prisoner at the time of the shooting it was imposible for his shots to have hit Fleischbein in the side and thigh, therefore these shots must have been fired by McKercher.

CALLED CRONIN A SPY.

DAN COUGHLIN SO ACCUSED BY A WITNESS.

The Secrets of Camp 20 Slowly Coming Out in the Cronin Trial at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The crowd at the court room door was larger this morning than at any time yet. The cause of the increased interest was the expected revelations from the Clan-na-Gael witness, Stephen Colleran, whose examination was to be resumed. It was thought by the state that Colleran knew more of the details of the meeting of Feb. 8 than had yet been brought out on the witness stand, and an effort would be made to-day to induce or compel him to tell the truth. The secrets of Camp 20 were to be exposed. Before court opened Mr. Foster had a consultation with his client, Beggs, and the State will find no objection from Mr. Beggs to the full clearing up of the secrets of Camp 20.

"Stephen Colleran," called Mr. Mills in a loud voice. The bailiff went to the anteroom, and, coming back, announced: "He is not there."

"Has Colleran skipped?" asked the audience one of another.

"He was told to be here," said Mr. Mills with a shade of annoyance in his tone.

Judge Longenecker asked for the issuance of an attachment for Edward Spelman of Peoria, the district officer of the Clan-na-Gael. "He was subpœned Sept. 13, has not answered, although he said he would come when telegraphed for. We summoned him day before yesterday and he has not come," said Mr. Longenecker.

"Let the attachment issue," said Judge McConnell.

Stephen Colleran not yet appearing an officer was sent for him, and Denis O'Connor was called.

Dennis O'Connor testified that he is a builder, and had belonged to the Clan-na-Gael for twenty-one years. He was at a meeting of Camp 20 at the North Side Turner hall Feb. 8.

"Did you hear Andrew Foy make a speech there?"

"He made a few remarks. No Clan-na-Gael man made speeches; only remarks."

"What did he say?"

"I cannot tell—I cannot remember."

"Did Capt. O'Connor make a speech?"

"He made some remarks."

"What about?"

"He said he had been in Dr. Cronin's camp and heard read the minority report of the trial committee."

"What trial committee?"

"As I understood it it was the trial of the executive body."

"Did you know who the executive were who were on trial?"

"I did not."

"Was it not the rule that members of the order should not know who the executive committee were?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you know who the ex-executive were?"

"I did not."

"Did you hear the names of any of those members of the ex-executive alluded to that night?"

"I did not. I do not remember having heard them."

"What was done after Capt. O'Connor's speech?"

"Some one moved that a committee be appointed to investigate this matter alluded to by Capt. O'Connor."

"Was the motion carried?"

"Yes."

"Was the committee appointed?"

"I don't know."

"What kind of a committee was it to be?"

"A secret committee."

"Who was to appoint it?"

"The senior guardian, I presume."

"Why do you presume?"

"Because he always appoints committees ordered by resolution."

"Who comprised the committee?"

"I don't know. I did not hear any names announced."

"Did you hear Capt. O'Connor say that the funds had been embezzled by the executive and instead of looking for spies in the camp the ex-executive ought to be investigated?"

"I might have heard that, but I don't remember it."

"Did Capt. O'Connor say that he obtained his information from the report he heard read in Dr. Cronin's camp?"

"I understood that."

"Did O'Connor say that the ex-executive had sent Irishmen to England and then betrayed them, and they were then in English prisons?"

"He might have said so. I wouldn't swear to it."

"Did not Foy say that there were English spies in the camp; that Le Caron was a spy, and that his friends were in the order here?"

"He might have said so."

"Were you at a meeting of Camp 20 May 3?"

"Yes."

"Did you hear any one ask the senior guardian whether that secret committee had reported?"

"I believe some one made that remark."

"Who was it?"

"I don't know."

Mr. Foster cross-examined Mr. O'Connor:

"How often did you hear the question asked of the senior guardian whether the report of the trial committee had reached the camp yet."

"Oh, that question was asked frequently."

"What was the object of this secret committee that was to be appointed?"

"In the first place I did not understand that it was a secret committee. I understood that the duty of the committee was to visit Dr. Cronin's camp and find out about this minority report that was read there and report back to the camp."

"Was this committee ever appointed?"

"I don't know."

"Was not there a motion made to refer the matter to the district officer?"

"I understood that the matter was referred to the district officer."

Mr. Foster tried by every mode of questioning to refresh Mr. O'Connor's memory so to recall the remarks said to have been made by Mr. Beggs on the point of referring the matter to the district member, but the witness would not positively swear to this.

Stephen Colleran was again called.

Mr. Mills asked Colleran a few questions as to the time of his conversation with Burke in which Burke told him that he was working at the stock yards, and had been working there for two weeks.

On cross examination Mr. Foster drew from Colleran the statement that the witness and Burke had been working for the city. They were discharged last December. They knew Beggs was president of the Irish-American Republican club and had a "pull." The three visits paid by Burke and Colleran to Beggs' office were for the purpose of securing Beggs' influence in getting them reinstated in their jobs.

"Were Clan-na-Gael matters spoken of in these conversations?"

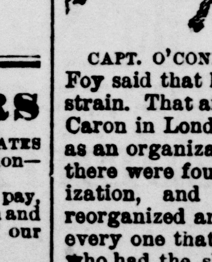
"No."

"Was Dr. Cronin's name mentioned?"

"No."

Patrick Henry Nolan, financial secretary of Camp 20, was the next witness, but "couldn't remember" the facts desired by the State's attorney.

Thomas F. O'Connor followed. He has been a Clan-na-Gael man 20 or 25 years and a member of Camp 20 fifteen or sixteen years. He was at the meeting February 8. Previous to that meeting had visited Dr. Cronin's camp. At Camp 20 on the night of Feb. 20 he made a speech, previous to one made by Andrew Foy. In his speech Foy said that he arose under a terrible strain. That after the disclosures of Le Caron in London, that the organization, as an organization, was no more. That there were four British spies in the organization, and the organization should be reorganized and given a new name, and every one that was in the organization who had the slightest taint or suspicion attached to him should be expelled from the organization.



CAPT. O'CONNOR.

The witness continued: "When he got through I stated that I was not at all surprised at hearing the gentleman talk as he had done. That I knew by positive knowledge that the organization was run by a parcel of rogues, known as our executive body; that they had squandered our funds, even to the extent of $100,000, and not alone that, but they sent our best men across to England to have them put behind British bars; and now I state positively that LeCaron was an agent of our executive body and received pay for them. At that moment I was interrupted by two or three brothers with a demand to know where I got my information, and there was a general uproar at the time. So I turned around to the Senior Guardian, and I said to him. "If the Senior Guardian demands of me where I got my information, I will tell him." He did not say anything. Then there was more uproar. I turned a second time and a third time, and said if the senior guardian would demand of me where I got my information I would tell him. Then I stated I had heard a terrible report of the entire trial committee in Buffalo, and that I had also seen a written report, three hundred pages of closely-written long hand, about the trial, and that I was positive of my statement. At that instant Daniel Coughlin, a member of the camp, arose to his feet and said, 'Mr. Guardian, I move you that a secret committee of three be appointed to find out the source of Captain O'Connor's information.' Those were his words. The Senior Guardian rapped the camp to order, as it was such a tumultuous time, and somebody spoke, and he said: 'I will hear no more of this subject, and I will appoint a committee.' That was all. John F. Beggs was Senior Guardian at the time."

Witness was at the reunion meeting the 22d of February and saw Martin Burke and Patrick Cooney there. Did not see O'Sullivan there.

On the captain's cross-examination nothing new was developed.

The next witness was Henry Owen O'Connor. He testified that at the meeting on Feb. 20 he had a conversation with Dan Coughlin.

"Go on and tell about that conversation."

"I was about leaving the hall; I was putting my overcoat on at the inner door, and Coughlin came up to me on the floor. He said to me that information had been received in Chicago to the effect that a confederate of Le Caron was among us. It excited my curiosity and I became interested in the matter. He went on to state, furthermore, that the indications were that the man was Dr. Cronin. I stopped him at that point; I stopped him there.

"What did you say to him?"

"I said to him that if he wished to look for the confederates of LeCaron we should look to the men in whose interest LeCaron had been used in packed conventions and through fraudulent credentials."

Mr. Foster conducted the cross-examination, but nothing new was elicited.

Officer John M. Collins was the next witness to testify. His testimony was in the main a corroboration of Capt. O'Connor's evidence. In answer to a question regarding a speech by Beggs, witness said Beggs made some remarks. One time he slapped his breast and said "this thing will have to cease or there will be war," or some such expression.

"He slapped his breast?"

"Yes, sir, with his hand?"

"What had to cease?"

"This tirade on the triangle and Alexander Sullivan."

"Did he mention Alexander Sullivan's name?"

"Yes, he did that night, and he said he had many friends there."

"What did he say about Sullivan's numerous friends?"

"He said his friends were there—a good many of them."

"What did he say about himself in that connection?"

"He alluded to himself as being a friend of Sullivan."

"What was done in the camp?"

"There was an uproar; they cheered his language when he alluded to Alexander Sullivan's friendship."

Patrick McGarry, a boiler maker, called on behalf of the prosecution, testified on examination that he belonged to the United Brotherhood being a member of Camp 234, the old number of which was 96. That camp was organized by Dr. Cronin and called the Columbia club and given the number 96. Camp 30 was also called 96 at that time. Witness was present at tre reunion meeting of Feb. 22, and made an address somewhat as follows:

In my remarks I said it was all very well to talk of unity, but that there could not be unity while members of the organization would meet in back alleys and dark corners and villify and abuse men that had the courage to stand up and take treachery and robbery by the throat and strangle it. I told them that they could not be too particular about getting members into the organization; that I had been investigating LeCaron's record, and I said that there were men in this organization that were worse than LeCaron, and that the man who gave Le Caron his credentials to go into the convention was a greater scoundrel than ever Le Caron could pretend to be. I said that I had found out that Le Caron camp did not exist in two years; that they didn't have a meeting. I said that they must have known that such a camp existed only on paper."

"Did John F. Beggs make a speech following yours?"

"Yes, sir."

"Beggs said visiting members were coming in there violating the hospitality of that camp, and it would have to be stopped. He said it was not right, that it was cowardly. He said they came there to attack Alexander Sullivan, and it was cowardly to attack any man behind his face, or who did not say so to his face. He said Alexander Sullivan has strong friends in this camp, and he slapped on his breast and said 'I am one of them.' "I got the floor afterward and I said the gentleman had said it was cowardly. I wanted them to understand that I was no coward; that I would tell Alexander Sullivan either there or on any other ground what my opinion of him was, and that every man who knew me knew what that was. I said: 'Why do you mention Alexander Sullivan's name? I have not mentioned it and have not heard it mentioned here until the senior guardian mentioned it.' I said: 'I repeat that the man who gave Le Caron his credentials is a greater scoundrel than ever Le Caron pretended to be.' I said that was all I had said and I did not mention his name until it was brought out. I should also say that Beggs, when he said that Alexander Sullivan had strong friends in that camp and he was one of them, also said: 'There shall be union and unity among the Irish people if it takes war to do it.' "

Mr. McGarry said he had visited P. O'Sullivan at his house on the Sunday night following Dr. Cronin's disappearance. In discussing the disappearance some one made the remark: "Don't you think the Order of Deputies has something to do with the disappearance of Cronin?" Witness said: "No, Sir; the Order of Deputies is too honorable to have anyting to do with that." Witness said if any one has had anything to do with Cronin's disappearance it is among people of his own country and nationality; that this was not the first time his life had been attempted, and then he told them of Dr. Cronin having been called two or three years before to attend a serious accident, such as this was represented to be; and he went up one flight of steps, and on entering the room did not like the appearance of the man on the bed, and said: "My God! Did you bring me here to murder me?" and he went down the steps two at a time. Witness said: "In my opinion this accident was something like that."

Cross-examination brought out nothing of importance and court adjourned.

The first successful blood-purifier ever offered to the public was Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Imitators have had their day, but soon abandoned the field, while the demand for this incomparable medicine increases year by year, and was never so great as at present.

Taken Unawares.

Unsuspected causes for malaria exist everywhere. A sunken lot partly filled with water in the vicinity of your abode, a new location upon land filled in but formerly overflowed or marshy, and causes far more occult than these produce the atmospheric miasmata which constitute the germs that, if inhaled, ripen into fever and ague and congenical maladies. A person taken unawares with a malarial complaint should, as soon as it declares itself, seek aid from the safe, non-disappointing, cordial medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has for over a third of a century, and in every quarter of the globe, relieved the malaria-stricken, and neutralized miasma in air and water. The Bitters imparts activity to the stomach, bowels and liver, repels incipient rheumatism, and remedies inaction of the kidneys and bladder. Appetite and sleep are improved, and the infirmities of age mitigated by its use.

You should read THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS because, being a family newspaper, it's against the saloon. The home and the saloon are forever opposed. There can be no neutrals in this war. But THE DAILY NEWS is temperate in temperance. It isn't a prohibition organ—it's not sure prohibition is the best way of treating the evil—but it believes in prohibiting the saloon keeper from ruling and ruining in American society. If you would read, and have your family read, a newspaper which places the interests of the home higher than those of the saloon, read THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

Horrible If True!

THE PANT FIEND AT WORK.

(PUCK.)

Oh, lives there heaven, beneath the dread expanse,
One wretched man who calls his trousers "pants?"
I asked myself this thing the other day.
(And stole the language, partly, by the way.)
And then I vowed if there was one in town
I'd catch him in the act and shoot him down.
I met a man when just beyond my gate
And stopped him, saying: "Will you kindly state
Whether among your friends, you just now chance
To think of one who calls his trousers pants?"
"Why, yes, he said, "I've just now left a man
Who always does." "Describe him if you can."
I cried. "He has grey-colored pants"—he said
I drew my gun and filled him full of lead.
Then, smiling gleefully at what I'd done
I hurried on to catch the other one.
But my description being incomplete
I thought to inquire of those I chanced to meet.
"Good friend," I said to one who came my way,
"Have you just met a man with trousers grey?"
"Grey pants?" he said; I shot him through and through,
And laughed aloud as up the street I flew,
A butcher stood beside his little shop,
I asked, "Did that man with grey trousers stop
About your place?" He laughed and said: "I seen
Some men with grey pants on which do you mean?"
I chased the scoundrel through the open door
And made him bite the sawdust on the floor;
I hastened on, and though I could not find
The one particular fiend I had in mind,
I did do noble work; I fired and fired.
And slaughtered pants fiends, until very tired,
I turned toward home. My shirt was wringing wet,
My coat was torn, my pants —

CHINESE LEPERS RETURNED.

Five Victims of the Loathsome Disease Sent Back to China.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 31.—Five Chinese lepers were shipped home from this city yesterday on a Hong Kong steamer. Among them was Chin Tun, aged 26, who was sent here from New York, where he had been employed as cook for laborers on the Croton acqueduct works. Chin Tun speaks English well and says five years ago he had a bad attack of small-pox in New York. He is a paralytic, tubercular leper. The lepers present a most terrible sight.

At a secret meeting of the board of health, held a few days ago, it was decided that the interest of the city would be served by shipping all the Chinese lepers to China. It is the opinion of experts that these men were tainted with the disease either before leaving China or brought it direct from the Hawaiian Islands.

MAY REPORT FOR FEDERATION.

Prospect That the Engineers Will Oppose Chief Arthur's Views.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 31.—The only business of importance transacted by the engineers' convention to-day was the aditing of the charity claims, which amount to about $20,000. The committee of ten appointed Monday to confer with like committees from the Knights of Labor and the firemen's brotherhood on the federation question reported itself unable to reach any conclusion and asked for further orders. The convention added to this committee George W. Vroman and sent it back for further deliberation. Vroman was a candidate for grand chief and is a warm supporter of federation, and the opinion is that these committees will recommend the adoption of the articles of federation presented at Atlanta, with slight modification.

NO ST. LOUIS BREWERIES SOLD.

The Offer of the English Syndicate Not Accepted by the Association.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 31.—The vast property of the St. Louis Brewery association has not been sold to an English or any other syndicate. The probability of the industry passing out of the hands of the St. Louis owners is so remote as not to invest the rumors that are irregularly current that a big deal to that effect is eminent or has been closed with basis sufficient for serious consideration. Ellis Wainwright, president of the Brewery association, said today: "Certain capitalists desired to purchase the property of the association, but they wanted all or none. They could not get all of it and that ended the negotiations. It is improbable that any bona fide offer can be made which would result in the purchase of all the stock."

TO BUILD TORPEDO-BOATS.

Scheme of Capitalists to Supply All Nations With the Destructive Vessels.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 31.—Contracts will be given out in a few weeks for the construction of thirty twin-screw seagoing gun torpedo-boats, a company having been formed here of New Haven, New York, and Philadelphia capitalists, with a capital of $6,000,000, to build and sell these boats to all nations. Dr. Gatling of gun fame has been selected to take charge of the construction of both vessels and guns and he has selected the shipyards on the Delaware river as the place for the building of the boats.

Big Judgment Against the Pennsylvania.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31.—A judgment by default was given by Judge Taft of the Superior court to-day, in the suit of the Little Miami Railroad Company against the Pennsylvania company, brought to collect the guaranteed dividend on the Little Miami shares, which the Pennsylvania company refused to pay on the ground that the Little Miami had not performed its contracts as to betterments. The amount of the judgment is $147,311.90, and to pay the judgment an order of sale has been issued for shares of stock held by the plaintiff by garnishee.

Western Rates Restored.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Boston & Albany, Fitchburg, Boston & Maine, New York & New England, and Central Vermont railroads announce the restoration Nov. 10 of Western passenger rates from Boston to New England points whose rates are based on Boston rates, to the rates published by the Boston passenger committee May 21, 1889, in its rate sheet No. 13, with supplements since published.

"THE GREAT CORN PALACE."

The committees that have in charge the arrangements for the coming Corn Palace at Sioux City, promise a display fare xceeding anything of the character heretofore attempted. The Corn Palace itself, built entirely of corn and grain, will fitly illustrate the agricultural resources of the vast area of country tributary to Sioux City, and the internal displays will epitomize the progress and enterprise of the hosts of earnest workers who are pushing the developement of that favored region in which "Corn is King."

To enable all to visit this "Eighth Wonder of the World," the Chicago & Northwestern Railway will sell Excursion tickets to Sioux City at half rate or one fare for the round trip.

The Corn Palace will be open September 23d, and close October 5th, and during that period numerous special trains will be run for the accommodation of visitors.

Tickets and full information can be obtained on application to agents of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company.

Dr. F. B. Brewer.

From the Free Press, Ripon, Wis.

"For years Dr. F. B. Brewer made his visits as regularly as the recurring seasons, has outlived all other specialists, and given unquestionable proof, by his regularity, that he is skillful and reliable.

"His visits do not interfere with the regular practice of the local profession, being confined to a special class of cases not much treated by them, and which they gladly surrender to those who, by constant study and long practice, are more eminently qualified to treat them with skill and success. We congratulate this class of sufferers on the opportunity thus offered, here at their homes, of being treated from time to time, by a physician who not only can thoroughly understand their peculiar needs, but knows the best remedies to be applied to cure them. And we unhesitatingly recommend the afflicted to avail themselves of the skill of Dr. F. B. Brewer, confident that from him they will obtain the advice and treatment their case needs."

The doctor's next visit to the Park hotel will be on Thursday, the 11th of November. Examinations free.

SIMPLY PERFECT.

The Union Pacific Railway, "The Over and Route," has equipped its trains with dining cars of the latest pattern, and on and after August 18th the patrons of its fast trains between Council Bluffs and Denver, and between Council Bluffs and Portland, Ore., will be provided with delicious meals, the best the market affords pefectly served, at 75 cents each. Pullman's Palace Car Co. will have charge of the service on these cars.

DR. B. MINCER, the eminent optician of Detroit, Mich, will visit every town in this county during the summer. Any one suffering with weak eyes, or eyes abused by inferior glasses, should not fail to see him. Orders left at the post-office will be promptly attended to. No extra charge for examing or visiting patients at heir homes.

STYLISH HATS AND SHOES.

THE LATEST MODES IN MEN'S WEAR.

In Hats the Straight Silk and Low-Crowned Derby About the Thing—Elastic and Buttoned Shoes Must Go—Their Places Taken by the Laced Article.

Proper English.

WHEN THE LONDON papers referred to the Whitechapel suspect as wearing an "American hat?" the average American foamed at the mouth. This was probably natural, as the hat the suspect wore was described as a "huge, beastly, slouch affair."

But the average American forgot that he himself is wont to refer to those little, ridiculously low, and narrow-brimmed articles of head-gear occasionally seen here as "those bloody English hats." And here the average American shows his lack of justice, for with the smallest amount of trouble he may ascertain that American styles in hats and shoes, or "boots" as they call them over there, are modeled altogether after the English fashions. Leading American hatters study all that is new in English styles, and an intensely American man may ridicule the London fashions while he is wearing the very latest London hat on his head without knowing it.

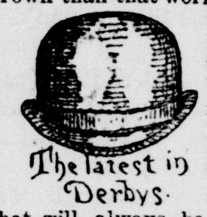
The diminutive derby—an English name by the way—which was worn so much in New York by Anglomaniacs some time ago was certainly not a handsome thing, but it was worn in New York long after the clubmen in Piccadilly had tossed it aside for a larger and fuller crown and a broader brim. The more ample sconce which followed the hideous little helmet soon became fashionable in New York, and some weeks later made its debut in Chicago, where it became popular and has remained so ever since. Although the little derby has died never to be revived, it was worn extensively during its short career by young men whose courage in dress overbalances their depth of intellect.

The fall fashions in hats, which were put out in the shop windows in London last August, are now exhibited in this country. Agents of the popular hatters have returned from over the water with their pockets full of diagrams and sizes, and their heads full of ideas. They have shipped samples and a fairly large stock of English hats to their stores, and already the American makers have turned out a stock which will more than meet with the fall demand.

The model of the tall, silk hat for young, middle aged, and old men, or at least the most popular model, is after a style introduced by the Prince of Wales last June. For young men it is not quite as high as last year, 6⅝ in the crown, and is perfectly straight without the slightest tendency to the bell shape. It has a 1½ brim, well rolled, and is probably as much like the original stove-pipe as silk pride can be. There is a New York style with a suspicion of a bell shape, but the straight hat is worn most. For men, the depth of the crown is 6⅝ with a 1½ brim.

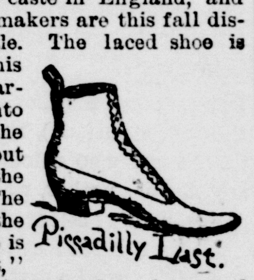
His Royal Highness' Hat.

In Derbys the latest English fall style is a black hat, but a trifle less full in the crown than that worn last year, and more that usually low. Black felt seems to be the most fashionable, but seal brown has a number of admirers. The high, square-turned crown with broad brim is a standard American hat that will always be worn, but those who affect being "proper English" should eschew it and take up with the new plates. The winter styles will be much the same as the fall, but of course the felt will be heavier. The best derbys are sold without a lining unless it is particularly called for.



The latest in Derbys.

The present season will see an important change in the style of shoes worn by Americans. While we have our own peculiar style in the cut of our coats and trousers and waistcoats, it can not be denied that we are slavishly English in the matter of hats and shoes. The elastic gaiter and the buttoned shoe has suffered a startling loss of caste in England, and the American shoemakers are this fall discouraging their sale. The laced shoe is now on the rise. This reform has been carried not alone into the realm of the morning shoe, but also into that of the evening shoe. The newest style in the polished dress shoe is the "Picadilly last," a laced boot of patent leather, long and narrow, with the toe low and well on the ground, and an imitation cap. It is certainly not as neat as the gaiter, but there is no gainsaying the fashion. The "London toe" gaiter still has a hold on American taste, and will last here long after it has been abandoned by the metropolitans.



Piccadilly Last.

London toe.

The prettiest sample in morning shoes is the new colt skin or cordovan shoe, which is laced all the way up, very long, narrow, perfectly square at the toe, and extremely flat. The stock is made in Hamburg. There is also the French puff toe in French, but it is not regarded popular, as we do not pattern after the French in men's apparel. Other styles are a kangaroo and a porpoise skin made to fit the foot exactly.

Gossip of Feminine Fashions.

Yellow will be more popular than ever through the winter.

Princesse backs are among the newest things for tailor gowns.

Entire costumes of vivid red are threatened, but will be restricted to theater use.

The accordion skirt will appear on many fall walking dresses, and accordion panels will also be frequent.

Petunia is one of the new shades of dark purple. Golden brown reappears, this season, also myrtle green.

Ostrich-feather trimming will be among the newest this fall, and is too expensive to become very common.

Cord of oriental colors is now made for braiding black or colored dresses, and is mostly used for pointed designs.

Panels for the front or sides of skirts are in Eiffel patterns, very broad at the foot and sloping to a point at the top.

Hand embroidery is being revived, and many beautiful and elaborate vines and leaf patterns are shown on black imported dresses.

The prevailing golden hue is trying, but not more so than the green, which has been universal, or the heliotrope, which was a craze two years ago and shortly will be so again.

A valuable adjunct to head adornments is a bonnet pin topped by a single red gold leaf resplendent with small stones.

Tulle and Brussells net for evening gowns have large, gauzy dots scattered over them, and one edge for the foot of the skirt is pointed in deep vandykes, with rows of dots following the skirt.

Very few of the new autumn gowns are finished with foot-pleatings. If placed upon the edge of the skirt they are covered by the draperies above them, their use being simply to slightly distend the upper folds or plaits.

A new and delicate shade of rose color has been brought from England. This is a marvelous compromise between vieux rose and salmon pink and is said to be remarkably becoming to fresh complexioned women with brown eyes and hair.

There is a rage for scintillating jewels; that is, gems set on slender wires, that quiver and borrow a new tint from every ray of light. These effective ornaments are worn not only in the hair, but amid the waves of lace on the corsage.

Camel's-hair cloths, with decided stripes and upstanding hairs, make pretty gowns and have small checks often combined with the stripes. Bordered cloths are made in every variety, mostly with the silk brocade, but also with the check and knickerbocker effects.

Among the newest shades for cloth gowns purple is taking a decided stand. There are the old-fashioned royal purple, shading up to the lightest of violet, besides those on the reddish purple, such as plum, prune, and heliotrope. On these gowns much gold braid is used, giving the wearer a truly royal appearance.

A novelty in fans seen abroad has the sticks studded with mock jewels and bordered with gathered lace which sways back and forth as the fan is moved with an indescribably seductive grace, revealing in its rise and fall the flash of colored gems. A background of gauze or thin silk holds the sticks in place.

The most stylish mourning gowns now seen combine English and Canton crepe, sometimes alone and sometimes with henrietta cloth, which retains great favor for mourning attire. For later mourning or light mourning white embroidered crepe appears in the combination, and some of it is extremely rich and beautiful.

Pretty shoulder-capes of cloth, velvet, and silk and lace, with picturesque velvet round hats or toques of cloth or felt, will be worn en suite with walking costumes until heavy wraps are necessary. Some of these capes have long scarf ends, and the trimmings are either of braiding, passementerie in arches or points, or feather bands.

The very long gloves, that command prices as long as themselves, are to be displaced by comparatively short ones; the change being brought about in order to display the wide bracelets that are again to be reinstated. These bracelets are massive affairs of burnished gold, lavishly set with jewels, or else the metal is twisted into all manner of curious devices.

Black costumes will be worn by young ladies this year more than they have been for several seasons. The bodices of black can not possibly look somber with the quantities of fancy trimmings of velvet braid and woolen laces which are now worn. Kid is also used on black, and, as it comes in various pretty shades, such as ecru, light, tan and prime, it serves as a background for designs in steel, gilt, or jet beads.

In new fall fabrics one which is said to be sure to achieve much popularity is a soft Scotch camel's-hair that comes in dull shades of brown, green, and gray, or a handsome Scotch plaid that has of late been adopted by the Duchess of Fife and worn when walking or driving about her husband's Highland estates. The beautiful Miss Leiter, who made her debut at Newport during the summer season, has an autumn gown of the plaid. Red and brown lines on a clear green ground are her colors. The skirt is heavily kilted the whole way around; the only relief in the draperies is a long, fringed plaid scarf knotted at the left hip, and a round, short coat is slipped over the loose cashmere skirt. Broad, solid, low-heeled walking shoes are worn, with green cloth gaiters, and a round crowned felt Highland bonnet with the two eagle feathers crossed on one side. These plaids are also eminently suited for walking dresses in all weathers, for their colors never run or lose their strength from the effects of sun or rain.

A Pair of Toilets.

These two pretty toilets are the very latest developments of fashion. That on the left hand is to be made of dove-colored Irish poplin, with a white vest and front of the same material, overlaid by a piece of black silk embroidery on net, while smaller trimmings of the same kind are laid on the bodice and sleeves. The other dress is a fine beige cloth, trimmed with the black passementerie, which, when carefully stitched, simulates braiding, but has none of its inconveniences.

TO MONTANA, OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

If you are going west bear in mind the following facts: The Northern Pacific Railroad owns and operates 987 miles, or 57 per cent. of the entire railroad mileage of Montana; spans the territory with its main lines from east to west; is the short line to Helena; the only Pullman and dining car line to Butte, and is the only line that reaches Miles City, Billings, Bozeman, Missoula, the Yellowstone National Park and, in fact, nine-tenths of the cities and points of interest in the territory.

The Northern Pacific owns and operates 621 miles or 56 per cent of the railroad mileage of Washington, its main line extending from the Idaho line via Spokane Falls, Cheney, Sprague, Yakima and Ellensburg, through the center of the territory to Tacoma and Seattle, and from Tacom to Portland. No other transcontinental through rail line reaches any portion of Washington Territory. Ten days stop over privileges are given on Northern Pacific second class tickets at Spokane Falls and all points west, thus affording intending settlers an excellent opportunity to see the entire territory without incurring the expense of paying local fares from point to point.

The Northern Pacific is the shortest route from St. Paul to Tacoma by 207 miles; to Seattle by 177 miles, and to Portland by 324 miles—time correspondingly shorter, varying from one to two days, according to destination. No other line from St. Paul or Minneapolis runs through passenger cars of any kind into Idaho, Oregon or Washington.

In addition to being the only rail line to Spokane Falls, Tacoma and Seattle, the Northern Pacific reaches all the principal points in Northern Minnesota and Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Bear in mind that the Northern Pacific and Shasta line is the scenic route to all points in California.

Send for illustrated pamphlets, maps, and books giving you valuable information in reference to the country traversed by this great line from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Ashland to Portland, Oregon, and Tacoma and Seattle, Washington, Territory, and enclose stamps for the new 1889 Rand McNally County map of Washington Territory, printed in colors.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

CASPER SHERMAN OF NEWVILLE ARRESTED FOR ILLEGAL DUCK SHOOTING AT LAKE KOSHKONONG.

Casper Sherman, of Newville, is in hot water. He has been up in the municipal court for the past few days charged with illegally killing ducks on Lake Koshkonong by the aid of a sneak boat. It appears that on the morning of the 24th of October, Sherman was seen by Game Warden W. Y. Wentworth, of Fort Atkinson, and Deputy Game Warden A. A. Bingham, of Albion, who were watching him, to scull out into the lake about thirty-five rods and shoot a duck, and about an hour latter to repeat the performance. A young son of Sherman's who was upon a bluff with a field glass, saw that his father was being watched, and so informed him. Sherman well knew that "something must be did," and so before a warrant could be sworn out in the municipal court he secured a friend to go before Justice Bullis, of Milton Junction, and complain of him, to which he plead guilty; and was fined five dollars and costs amounting to eight dollars and fifteen cents, which was paid. One-half of of the fine was paid to the complainant. He then considered the things settled, but not so with the game warden. When Sherman was brought up before the municipal court on complaint of the game warden, he plead previous punishment, but Judge Patterson held that the case was fraudulent, and setting it aside, fined Sherman five dollars and costs, which amounted to about thirty dollars, and Sherman took an appeal to the circuit court.

This sentence covered the first trip that Sherman made on the morning of the 24th, and the second one on the same day was still to be settled for. A warrant was then sworn out for the second trip and Sherman was again arrested, and after several days' delay arguing law points the case came up before Judge Patterson yesterday. It was tried before a jury consisting of the following gentlemen: J. B. Dearborn, David Conger, Wm. Winkley, W. M. Eldredge, O. D. Bates, and Michael Cronin. Wm. G. Wheeler, assisted by J. B. Doe, Jr., appeared for the prosecution, and Edward M. Hyzer for the defense. Some objections to Mr. Doe appearing in the case were raised by Mr. Hyzer, he claiming that Mr. Doe had no authority to appear for the state, and that he was there in the interest of private parties. Mr. Doe and Mr. Wheeler were sworn and the objection was overruled by the court. Messrs. Wentworth and Bingham were the only witnesses for the state, the defendant not being sworn at all. After the testimony was all in and Mr. Wheeler had opened the case to the jury, Mr. Hyzer moved that the defendant be discharged on the ground that the offence had not been proven by the prosecution to have been committed in Rock county, and that the case was not under the jurisdiction of the Rock county municipal court. As that was one of the questions for the jury to determine, the motion was denied. The arguments in the case were then made, and the case went to the jury at four o'clock. After two hours deliberation the jury agreed to disagree and were discharged by the court. Sherman is not charged with killing ducks as he has a perfect right to do that, but with using in their destruction a sneak or scull boat, which under the law made in 1887 and amended at the last session of the legislation makes the use of a sneak or scull boat an infraction of the game law. A sneak or scull boat is a craft built very low in the water and decked over about one third of its length and being painted as near the color of the water as possible, is almost invisible to the ducks. It is propelled by a single oar which is projected through a circular hole in the stern post of the boat, the operator in using it lying on his back out of sight, is enabled by a "simple twist of the wrist" to propel his boat swiftly and unobservedly and is consequently enabled to approach very near the ducks. When within shooting distance he jumps up, and as the frightened ducks arise can always bag a good number, especially if he has two or three guns, as is generally the case, after getting twenty or thirty in the four discharges of two bouble barrel guns loaded for "bar".

IMPORTANT TO MERCHANTS.

THE MERCHANTS' RETAIL COMMERCIAL AGENCY.

Mr. H. W. Beatley and Mr. Geo. H. Estabrook are in the city in the interests of the merchants' retail commercial agency. They are introducing an entirely new system that will be of special value. The agency now furnishes to every member a book of reference giving the record and moral standing of every consumer in Rock and four adjoining counties. Also a collection department whereby all accounts are collected from the Chicago office, and all correspondence conducted from the same point. This is practically furnishing to every retail merchant an agency superior to Dunn or Bradstreet at a nominal price. Under the new system local organizations are dispensed with and the annoyance of a lack of interest is not felt. The agency commends itself to every merchant. The business men of Janesville will not be slow to appreciate the advantages to be derived. The agency is also working to have the following amendment to the state law adopted:

We believe that the united movement of the merchants of Wisconsin, looking to the enactment of some law protecting our business will be a benefit, and among other things, we suggest the following:

First.—We want railroad corporations compelled to pay their employes twice a month.

Second.—We want a law passed that will probibit "Hawkers" and peddlers representing so-called wholesale houses, going from house to house soliciting orders on the retail plan.

Third.—We desire such an amendment to the exemption laws now in operation as will allow no exemption of wages for the actual necessities of life.

Fourth—We desire a change in the Homestead Exemption so that such homestead shall be fixed in dollars as to valuation.

Fifth—We desire necessary legislation to prevent transient persons from locating temporarily in the cities and towns of the state for the purpose of auctioning off goods, thereby interfering with and injuring the local trade of those who pay taxes and bear the burdens of citizenship.

AN OLD PIONEER GONE.

DEATH OF PETER SCHMITZ, AT DOVER, MINNESOTA.

The Gazette is in receipt of the following letter announcing the death of Peter Schmitz, formerly a resident of Rock county:—

To the Editor.

MARSHALL, MINN., Oct. 29th, 1889.—Peter Schmitz, an old resident and early settler of Rock county, died at Dover, Minnesota, October 28th, 1889.

Many of the older residents of Janesville, and Rock county, will remember "Uncle Peter," of Mt. Zion.

He came to Rock county in 1848, and settled in Harmony, where he lived until 1878, when he moved to Lyon county, Minnesota; living there until 1888, when he went to Dover to live with his daughter Josie.

He had been a great sufferer for years, his trouble being a disease of the kidneys. He was buried at Marshall, Minnesota, where his son Clarence was buried in 1879.

His son, Kaspar, was buried on the day before he was, at the same place. Kaspar died from an ulcer in the stomach, which broke and caused internal hemorrhage, and lived only twenty-six hours after it broke, dropping away about eighteen hours before his father. He had lived near Marshall since 1878. Peter leaves his wife and daughter, Josie, Kaspar his wife.

The writer has had occasion to see and talk with neighbors of both, and such entire confidence as all had in each and both of the departed he never saw. No word of censure or complaint of either. They were indeed beloved by all. Peter had arrived at that age, 75, when he might be expected to go and he did go like a shock of ripened grain ready for the harvest. His work was seemingly completed and he was ready and anxious to go and be at rest. His only complaint being that he did not cease to exist on earth.

Kasper was 38 years old and it seemed hard that one who had struggled so hard for a start in life and had just got where it seemed to be clear sailing, should be stricken down. But not a word of complaint as to his fate; and during the extreme agony of the last hours his only thought seemed to be for the comfort and future welfare of those he was leaving behind. BLIND TOM.

AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ON MONDAY EVENING.

Sings in German, French and English without understanding a single rudiment of written music. He composes artistic gems, evincing rare natural ability, and performs the most difficult classical compositions with all the correctness, purity of expression, skill and excellence of the most distinguished artists. He executes three airs simultaneously, each in a different key, and performs music correctly with his back to the instrument. He will also play second or bass to any piece of music that can be produced by any performer from the audience, and will afterwards change seats and play the primo. His wonderful memory and remarkable faculty for analyzing and locating sounds enable him to imitate upon the pianoforte almost every known musical instrument, and to repeat without understanding their meaning, the speeches of our greatest orators (to which he has listended at different times), with most faithful accuracy, and reproduces upon the piano any piece played in his presence, after once hearing it.

Blind Tom will give one of his popular concerts at the Congregational church on Monday-evening. Tickets for sale at King & Skelly's bookstore.

OBITUARY.

WILLIE HARRIS.

After a long and very painful sickness, death came to the relief of Willie Harris the son of Mrs. Jessie Harris, No. 3 Prospect avenue, aged fifteen years and three months. The sad event occurred at half past twelve o'clock this morning The little fellow had been a terrible sufferer for years, being afflicted with a scrofulous disease of the worst type. He had been unconscious for several days before death.

The funeral will be held from the house at half-past two to-morrow (Friday).

THE WEATHER.

At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 40 degrees above zero. Cloudy with north wind. At one o'clock p. m. the register was 46 degrees above zero. Cloudy with north wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 54 and 74 degrees above zero.

He was selecting presents for his girl before Christmas. He bought an amber comb, a box of caramels and a bottle of Dr. Bulls Cough Syrup, and showed himself thereby a right sensible dude.

HALLOWEEN FESTIVALS.

Some Quaint Customs that May be Observed.

THE ANCIENT OBSERVANCE

Annual Chance for Night Raiding, Cabbage Pulling, Nut Cracking and Divining Lovers' Future.

It is among the Scotch and Irish chiefly that this ancient festival is observed, but its superstitions have become so popular that the quaint customs to which it has given rise are by no means confined to the lads and lassies of these nationalities.

It is in truth a lover's night says the Milwaukee Sentinel, and the shy maiden who has no lover seeks to catch a glimpse of her future hero's face, while the pretty lass who has one tries to divine whether he is faithful by means of the superstitious devices sanctioned by long usage, and sometimes practiced more in earnest than in jest even in this unsuperstitious age. Of course, the most familiar customs are those of eating an apple before a looking glass, with the view of seeing a future wife or husband peeping over the shoulder, and backing down the cellar stairs with a candle in one hand and glass in the other, with the expectation of catching a reflection of the face of one's future life companion. In these days of social co-mingling, though, the favorite customs are those that prevail at gatherings of young folks and these are many, as they are varied and interesting.

The nut burning custom, as the simplest and best, still reigns favorite. Chestnuts are generally chosen. They are named, either in pairs, which are placed side by side before the fire, or in threes, with the names of possible lovers. If, in the last case, the nuts fly about wildly, there is no dependence to be placed on the truth or faithfulness of the persons for whom they are named. If the pair burns steadily and quietly, the courtship will be happy and the marriage prosperous. Burns tells the story in his "Allhallowe'en.".

> The auld guid wife's well-hoarded nits
> Are round and round dividec,
> An' monie lads' and lasses' fates
> Are there that night decided.
> Some kindle couthie, side by side,
> An' burn thegther trimly;
> Some start awa' wi' saucy pride,
> An' jump out owre the chimlie
> Fu' high that night.

While the nut-burning, as described, is the only feasible way in a large city like Milwaukee, out in Waukesha and all the other counties in the state where hickory nuts grow in profusion, a more elaborate affair can be gotten up, known as "the nut shake." The plan is this: The nut shakers build hardwood fires around the tree which has been selected for the purpose and dozens of lantern jacks (excavated pumpkins with nose, eyes and mouth cut in the sides, through which the light of candles shine) are set on stumps and tree limbs all through the grove. These goblin-like faces peer out of the darkness suggestive of the weired presence of gnomes and other fairy folks.

The fire dispenses both light and warmth, for the October evenings are apt to be chill, and the rugs and blankets spread underneath the trees to catch the nuts, serve also as a protection from the dampness of the ground.

Lads and young men climb the tree preparatory to giving it a vigorous shaking. Girls stand underneath the tree with arms outstretched, each striving to catch the largest number possible of the falling nuts.

The charmed number seven (so-called by the superstitious), rules this evening. So the girl who catches seven nuts or any larger number, which is a multiple of seven, is considered most fortunate. The one who secures the largest number of all (if it can be divided evenly by seven) is declared the fairy god-mother, and she becomes arbitress of the "Shake."

Seven baskets are brought, into which the nuts which have fallen upon the blankets are gathered.

Double nuts are said to signify an early wedding; clusters of three a legacy; four indicates great wealth; five a voyage across the sea; six, fame as a public speaker; seven, the possession of the gift most desired by the finder.

The fires are now, probably sufficiently advanced so that the roasting of nuts, apples, and late planted corn may begin. So with long pointed sticks some spear the corn and apples, while others bury nuts and apples in the hot ashes. Still others name the nuts and lay them upon a shovel above the red-hot coals, watching with deepest interest what their behavior while roasting may predict. The omens applicable to nut burning also rule in this case. If the nuts roast quietly, it foretells long and true friendships. If they fly about snappishly, a quarrel is prophesied. If one or more bursts, loss of money is to be expected. Those that keep moving are unstable, and such as fly off the shovel will remain single still another year.

For in-door amusement there are many customs. Diving for apples is a rather rough part of the evening's games but boys find it very much to their minds. Apples are thrown into a tub partly filled with water, and whoever can bring one up in the mouth secures good luck for the year to come. Another method is to hang the apple by a string just on a level with the mouth, tie the hands behind one and then try to bite the swinging fruit. There is small doubt about the good luck of whoever succeeds, for it requires perseverance enough to insure success in anything the average person is likely to undertake.

"Melting lead" is another favorite custom. The lead is melted and poured into cold water, the shape it takes indicating what the profession of the lover will be. Some curious suggestive shapes sometimes are formed in this way, perhaps masts or stars, a sword, a pencil, a bottle or even a little palette with a hole in it.

Then there is the wedding ring test. Each wedding ring is held by a hair in the center of a glass tumbler. Soon it will begin to swing, till finally it rings against the side of the glass, the loudest chime being the signal for the best fortune for the holder.

There is a needle test, too. A dozen or more needles are thrown into a bowl of water, and names are given them. They float about, sometimes point to point, sometimes closely side by side, and now and then one sinks suddenly. The pair which float longest side by side are true lovers and will not be divided.

In many southern families "snapdragon" is a favorite amusement at Hallowe'en time. There is a great bowl which is used for snapdragon or the christening punch, but never on any less solemn occasion. The dragon is found in half a pint of brandy or alcohol; the "snap" is candied fruit, figs, raisins, sugared almonds, which are thrown in after the spirit has been lighted. Though there is a big bowl full of blaze, a bit of fruit can be caught out without scorching the fingers, provided the snap is sudden enough. The one who secures the most desirable piece will meet her true love within the year.

In Ireland there is a custom something akin to the one of trying to bite an apple at the end of a pendant string, with one's hands tied together. This is to balance a stick on a string with an apple on one end and a lighted candle on the other. The stick is then twirled, the object being to catch the apple with the mouth without the use of the hands. It requires a good deal of agility to avoid getting hit with the handle.

THE JEFFERSON SCHOOL.

A FEW MORE WORDS RELATING TO ITS CONDITION.

After listening to the verbal report made by Supt. Keyes, of the city schools, (at the special meeting of the board of education on Monday evening) concerning the atmospheric condition of Miss Ormsby's room in the Jefferson building, and the remarks made by several of the commissioners, including the clerk of the board, the Gazette reporter considered the subject a matter of very important interest to the public, especially to the parents who have children in that room. Therefore the verbal report or statement of the superintendent was published, as was also the statement of the clerk, all in substantially the language used. In doing this the Gazette had no desire to engage in a personal warfare with the editor of the Recorder, who happens to be a member of the school board and also its clerk. But the Gazette desires it to be clearly understood that it has a right to, and will, when occasion arises, criticise the acts of any public officer.

The Recorder cannot with truth deny the statements made by Superintendent Keyes and Commissioner Wilson at the meeting of the school board on Monday evening. The Gazette cares nothing whatever what the Recorder may say in relation to the perfect condition of the building, when it has the undisputed evidence of Superintendent Keyes and Commissioner Wilson that it is in the condition as reported in the Gazette on Tuesday evening, or worse.

After the adjournment of the meeting of the board last evening, Superintendent Keyes was asked by a Gazette reporter in the presence of President McLean, if the condition of the building had been over stated, or his report of it exaggerated? The Gazette will not repeat his exact answer as it was not intended for the public, but so far as it related to this matter, the superintendent said it had been reported too mild, if anything.

Mr. Spencer acknowledges that he has frequently been invited to visit the school—both by Clerk Wilson and by Prof. Keyes, and no one regrets more than he that the invitations have not been accepted, although, on one occasion he did visit Jefferson school with Mr. Wilson.

Superintendent Keyes says the atmospheric condition of this particular room is so bad—so foul from gaes coming from the furnace, and the room having no ventilation—that he could not remain in it.

Clerk Wilson, who by the rules of the board is required to visit each school once in two weeks, and examine into the condition of the schools and buildings—says he has been aware of this state of things for some time.

Who is responsible for it? and why is it not remedied?

The statement of the Recorder that the building is in a better condition than it has been for the past ten years, and the assurances of a "competent workman" are outweighed by the verified report of the chief officer of the school, and will cut no figure in the discussion.

This is the question before the public, and the Gazette believes it to be the duty of the board of education to remedy it even to the razing of the building.

The Recorder will please drop personalities in its discussion, and treat the hook and ladder business in the same manner it does the Search murder case.

ACCIDENTALLY OMITTED

FROM THE COURT CALENDAR PUBLISHED LAST EVENING.

Two of the most important cases for trial at the coming term of court were accidentally omitted in last evening's Gazette. They are as follows:

James Byrne vs. C. M. & St. P. Railway Co. Fethers, Jeffris & Fifield for plaintiff; John T. Fish for defendant.

Stewart B. Heddles vs. Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co. Fethers Jeffris & Fifield for plaintiff, Winkler, Flanders, Smith, Bottrun & Vilas for defendant.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

PROF. I. N. STEWART, OF APPLETON, UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED CITY SUPERINTENDENT.

An adjourned meeting of the board of education was held last evening in the council chamber. President C. C. McLean presided, all the commissioners being present except Commissioner Fethers.

President McLean stated the object of the meeting to be for the purpose of electing a superintendent in place of Prof. Keyes, resigned.

The clerk laid before the board a large number of applications and many more letters of recommendations.

Considerable time was occupied in an informal discussion of the merits of the several candidates, finally ending in a motion by—

Com. Metcalf, that the board proceed to elect a city superintendent of schools for the unexpired term ending August 1st, 1890. Adopted.

The president designated Com. Metcalf to act as teller.

The whole number of votes cast was six, all of which were cast for Prof. I. N. Stewart, and Prof. Stewart was declared duly elected.

The clerk was directed to notify Prof. Stewart of his election, and request his presence as soon as possible.

The salary of the superintendent was fixed at the rate of $1,500 a year.

Bills aggregating $343, mostly for insurance and books, were audited.

The board adjourned.

MATRIMONIAL.

COLLINS-CLELAND.

At the residence of Mr. James Cleland, 163 Terrace street, last evening, October 30, at 8 o'clock, his daughter, Mattie J. Cleland, was married to Mr. Frank H. Collins, of Ft. Worth, Texas. The house was filled with a large gathering of the relatives with a few intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom. Among those who came from outside the state were three brothers of the bride, Judge John B. Cleland and William A. Cleland, Esq., both of Fargo North Dakota, and Samuel J. Cleland of Emporia, Kansas, the latter being accompanied by his wife and child. Judge Cleland's niece, Miss Emma Cory, was present from Whitewater, and besides playing the wedding march, favored the company during the evening with a delightful entertainment of instrumental music and song. His little daughter Mattie also, a namesake of the bride, rendered charming and efficient service as her attendant One corner of the front parlor had been decorated with vines, leaves and flowers, and above all hung a floral bow and arrow. Across that corner also had been drawn a bar of cream colored ribbon, the knot in the middle ornamented with pale pink roses. At the appointed hour the bride was ready, as in all her past life she has always been found ready for every family and friendly duty or service and all forms of good doing. And so in her future home, we are sure that she will ever be found ready, able and willing to do all that makes a home happy in itself, and its life a blessing to the society around it. To the sound of a wedding march the chief parties took their places. There were a few words from the bride's pastor, Rev. Wm. F. Brown, of the First Presbyterian church, and the responses of bridegroom and bride the wedding ring was put on, the marriage duly declared and then to Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Collins came the most sincere and cordial congratulations. These were followed by an elegant and elaborate supper, which was a married feast indeed.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins will make their home at Ft. Worth, Texas. They have been a part of what in the truest sense of the word is our best society, and we shall miss them both.

A room full of delighful wedding presents from relatives and friends could but partially express the good will and affection which went with them. Among other relatives from abroad there were present the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKibbin, of Commerce, Mich. Mr. Allen Bryson, of the same place, another uncle, and a cousin of the bride, Dr. J. B. Ewing, of Detroit, Mich.

REV. F. W. GUNSAULUS.

WILL LECTURE IN JANESVILLE, NOVEMBER 15TH.

One week of the assembly has now passed, and the general programme is pronounced better than any of its predecessors. It is a matter of just pride that the lecturer who has stirred the enthusiasm of the assembly beyond comparison with any other is Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus of Chicago. His clear distinct tones can be heard in any part of the auditorium (which seats 2,200 people) without the loss of a syllable; but to catch a flash of his piercing black eyes one needs a seat near the front. The charm of his oratory is not merely in the magnetism of his presence, the wonderful richness, of transparency, of his style, and the freshness and beauty of his poetic figures, but lies more in the intense and lofty moral earnestness which makes it a genuine inspiration of the soul to hear him.—Beacon.
